

A glimpse of the 1988 comic...

The self defense was good to know, but now antidrugmun tried an idea in his mind. He pressed a palm into one of the chest's eyes and pushed forth soul was his super on. PURE, SURELY inspired only from ty to outdistance al bullshit.

The SOUL was his super imagination. PURE, SURELY INSANE, inspired only from his ability to outdistance artificial bullshit.

The fiend of greed could "LOVE" people no more. They were so consciously astounded by the uncanny wildness of antidrug mun that they were quickly beaten. Having gotten used to drugs being the cure for their every major worry, they couldn't handle such a dose of genuine insanity (reality) so they had fainted. Upon Awakening, they'd find themselves INSANE FOR REAL and FOREVER ...at least until a drug could be made to "HELP" (control) them.

About 15 yearz later...

& divided from each other. We can't even get to first base as far as solidarity with fellow humans. So i think of us most of us end up seeking escape. The problem with escape to comes back to our lack of connection with constructive awareness...
